

BRIEFS

Meetings

Liberty City Council's regular monthly meeting scheduled for today (July 11) has been canceled. Casey County Fiscal Court will meet in regular session on Monday, July 16, at 5 p.m. upstairs in the Casey County Courthouse.

Boil-water advisory

A boil-water advisory is in effect for Liberty and 80 percent of Casey County until further notice. The areas of Dunnville, Thomas Ridge, Windsor, Clementsville, and Dry Creek are not under the advisory. According to Liberty Mayor Steve Sweeney, a 10-inch water main broke on Monday afternoon on East Ky. 70 just past the bridge. City workers, aided by firefighters from the Liberty Fire Department, worked until midnight to repair the break. Sweeney said that water samples have been sent to Frankfort for testing and hopefully, the advisory will be lifted in a couple of days.

Commodities

Commodities will be distributed to all income-eligible residents today (July 11) from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Casey County Recycling Center. Recipients are asked to bring their own containers.

Local Weather

Wed 7/11 87/67 Variable clouds with scattered showers and thunderstorms, mainly in the aft.

Thu 7/12 78/67 A few thunderstorms possible.

Fri 7/13 79/68 A few thunderstorms possible.

Sat 7/14 84/69 Scattered thunderstorms. Highs in the mid 80s and lows in the upper 60s.

Sun 7/15 84/68 Scattered thunderstorms possible.

The End of an Era ‘Dr. George’ known as a physician and friend

By Joberta Wells Correspondent

An era came to an end on July 6, 2012 when Dr. George Sweeney, the surviving member of the Sweeney, Sweeney, and Wesley medical practice, died at his home. He lived in Liberty for most of his life and died on the same site where he was born on April 23, 1922. He was the son of Dr. William Jasper and Edna Jones Sweeney. In the middle of World War II, George married Molly Popplewell on Dec. 21, 1944. They had four children — Suzanne, George Steven (Steve), Lydia, and Sally — all of whom still live in Liberty. Molly died Aug. 11, 1989. “Dr. George,” as he was known by most of Casey County’s residents, was an outstanding physician. He was a kind, compassionate man who was a hero to several generations of Casey Countians who knew him as their doctor. Most people considered him to be their friend, as well.

Early days

He wasn’t always a doctor. From the time he was a very young boy he was a farm hand on the family farm. There are still a few people around who remember seeing him plowing the fields where the Don Franklin Chevrolet dealership is today. He was also a dairyman. He arose well before dawn and

Luttrells treated customers like family

By Amanda Cole Staff Writer

Honest. Hardworking. Kind. Great businessmen. These are the words repeatedly used to describe Abe Luttrell and his son George Abe Luttrell who passed away within hours of each other last week. Abe, 92, died late Monday, July 2 at Casey County Hospital. George Abe, 65, died early Tuesday, July 3 at Central Baptist Hospital in Lexington. Known to many in Casey County as the owners and operators of Abe’s Food Market and Abe’s Pic-Pac in Liberty, the two men and their families touched many lives through their years in the grocery store business. “He was a very honest person, a very hard worker,” Sheila Goode said of her father, Abe. “He loved the grocery business and helping people.” Rollan Cannon and his wife, Phyllis, worked for Abe and his wife, Pearl, in the mid 1950s. “He was one of the finest persons I ever met and worked for,” Rollan said. “Abe was a good Christian man. He believed in doing things the right way.” It was his Christian faith that made him a good businessman, Goode said. Abe’s beliefs led the Luttrells through 32 years in the grocery store business. Abe and Pearl started out purchasing a little grocery store on Ky. 70 from Archie Clements for $1,300 and opened Luttrell’s Grocery on April 1, 1948. Abe traveled the county peddling groceries until 1950 when they moved the store to Hustonville Street. Then in 1954, they built Abe’s Food Market at the intersection of Hustonville Street and Woodrum Ridge Road in Liberty. The last location would come to be like home, where Abe treated the customers like family, Goode said. “We all worked there,” she said of her and her three siblings, Harold Glenn, George Abe and Elicia Mae. “He would open the store to get things for people if he knew they needed them,” Goode said. Abe and Pearl retired in 1980, which is when George Abe stepped in. He had expressed interest in starting a

Jail audit cites bookkeeping issues

By Larry Rowell Staff Writer

Casey County Jailer Tommy Miller, an 18-year veteran of state audits, is fond of saying that “if you’re looking for misuse of funds, there ain’t any.” And in this year’s audit, while citing more “non-compliance” issues than in past audits, there was no fraudulent activity reported. State Auditor Adam Edelen’s office in Frankfort recently released the 2011 financial findings of the jail along with Casey County Fiscal Court. Miller said that the majority of the issues auditors raised with the jail canteen were attributed to old computer software that has been scrapped in favor of a new and updated version, which will help jail employees keep up with financial reports. An accounting procedure cited for the past several years has to do with the segregation of duties in the canteen.

teen. Auditors stated that the jailer’s bookkeepers receive the mail, collect money, issue receipts, prepare and deposit receipts, and write checks without documented oversight by Miller. Auditors suggested that having an additional employee share some of these duties would lessen the possibility of the misappropriation of funds. “I as jailer have made the decision to help offset the cost and to save taxpayers’ money that one staff person is capable of preparing the required paperwork for this operation of our jail,” Miller said. Additionally, Miller said that monies for inmates now come into the canteen by check or money order, unlike the ATM machine that used to be in the lobby. Miller was also cited — as he has been in years’ past — for not co-signing checks on the canteen account.

“I have advised my canteen officer to order two-lined checks so that two signatures can be placed on all checks,” he said. In addition, Miller said that he’s now initialing and dating all receipts and invoices per the auditors’ instructions. Another issue raised by auditors was the jail canteen financial report that wasn’t prepared at the end of the fiscal year. “We also noted the financial report was not prepared and submitted until the auditors asked for it. Report was dated Feb. 16, 2012, more than seven months after the fiscal year ended on June 30, 2011,” the audit states. Miller blamed the oversight on the accounting software not using the correct accounting forms. “We have since put in new canteen software and the staff is being trained on the use of the new format and this should not be a problem

Architects show plans for new college

By Larry Rowell Staff Writer

Progress continues to be made in the development of building a new college in downtown Liberty. Architects with the firm of CMW, Inc. of Lexington were at City Hall on June 29 to discuss the development and design of the building that will house the Casey County Community and Education Center. “We are in the throes of finishing the design development,” said Jack Ballard, president of CMW, as he stood in front of drawings showing the layout of the building which will be located on Jockey and Petty John Streets. Ballard and landscape design architect Brad Boaz met with about 20 interested citizens and members of the loosely formed committee working to make the dream of a downtown college come true. The architects also wanted to seek answers to a series of questions about finishes, tile, and carpeting in as well as the new facility. However, before the bids for building the $3 million structure can be advertised, all the funding has to be in place. Liberty Casey-County Economic Development Director Blaine Staat said that this is much closer to reality than a dream.

Jail canteen needs more oversight

Liberty Mayor Steve Sweeney likes to say that living in Casey County is like living in Eden. And with good reason.

The county boasts a stellar school district, first-class hospital, dedicated law enforcement officers and fire fighters, beautiful scenery, neighborly, hard-working people, and a quality place to raise a family.

We certainly add to that list the Central Kentucky AG/EXPO Center, the judicial center and the detention center.

Why the detention center? Inmates perform multiple tasks to improve the county including keeping the road rights-of-way clean, growing a massive garden to feed the inmate population, mowing and landscaping at various county owned properties, making road signs, and pitching in to help during past disasters such as the October 2009 tornado that tore through the Creston area of the county.

Also, on a recent unannounced visit to the jail, we found the staff to be courteous and professional, the facility to be clean, especially the kitchen, which was spotless and prepared food that was worthy of being served in any quality restaurant.

The jail also makes money, which is rare in Kentucky.

Jailer Tommy Miller, in his 18th year of service, is to be commended for these attributes which contribute so much to the welfare of the the inmates and to the county.

However, these attributes are somewhat overshadowed by bookkeeping issues that were raised by the 2011 state audit.

We stress from the outset that neither Miller nor any of his staff were accused of misusing or mishandling any funds. There's no hint of impropriety or fraudulent activity.

These accounting non-compliance issues centered around the day-to-day running and oversight of the jail's canteen, where inmates purchase snacks and personal hygiene items.

No money is handled as inmates' family members use money orders or checks — not cash — to credit to an inmate's canteen account.

Auditors found that canteen reports were not being filled out in a timely manner nor were daily accounting forms properly filled out.

In addition, auditors discovered in February of this year that the annual canteen financial report — due at the end of the fiscal year on June 30, 2011 — was not completed until auditors raised the question as to its whereabouts.

A failure to fill out and submit to the state sales tax forms resulted in the jail having to pay a $376 penalty.

Miller said that the problem was due to problems with computer software. Further, he has pledged to give more hands-on oversight to the operation of the canteen.

We are encouraged by Miller's commitment to improve the challenges of operating a canteen for the inmates.

Here's hoping that next year's audit shows a vast improvement in this area of an otherwise well-run facility.

Birthday celebration brings back childhood memories

Why is it that we enjoy doing activities from our childhood?

Two weeks ago we celebrated my husband's 25th birthday. I bought him a cake and his favorite flavor of ice cream - Superman.

While we enjoyed a scoop of ice cream after cake, he said he didn't know why he liked it so much, whether it was because of the flavor or the memories it brought back of his childhood.

Superman ice cream always makes him think of the first time he had it with his late father at an old ice cream parlor in Jamestown.

One of his birthday presents this year was having his bike repaired. So we've been riding our bicycles up and down the lane almost every night. That will definitely bring back memories of childhood for any adult.

My husband, Ian, remembers going on long bike rides around town with his dad. I remember long, sunny days riding up and down our gravel driveway and up the big hill to my paternal grandmother's house with all three of my older sisters.

As we rode the other night, Ian showed off his ability to ride without hands. I recalled two of the three scars on my right knee that prove I never got the hang of that. I received the third scar when I fell chasing my cousin D.J.

down our gravel driveway during a game of tag.

But Ian's question got me thinking.

Do I really enjoy working puzzles? Or is it because when I do, I remember all the weekends I spent with my late maternal grandmother working puzzles in her kitchen on her fold-out card table? We both enjoyed being able to put in the final piece.

Why is it that I enjoy receiving (snail) mail so much? It probably has something to do with the hours I spent as a child playing mailman at my late paternal grandmother's house. She always had so much mail.

So why is it that we enjoy doing activities that remind us of our childhood? I think it has something to do with the carefree attitude children have. They don't have the pressures of adulthood weighing on their shoulders - no responsibilities, no job, no bills, and some loved ones were still around in our childhood. Even though I'm 25 and it hasn't been that long since I was considered a child, I still like being reminded of those days.

Always something to do in Casey County

I estimated that there were probably just north of 125 adults and children who attended the events.

However, overall, it should have been better attended.

Activities ranging from eating contests to bike races to a kiddie patriotic parade were offered and it was all free because of the various businesses that graciously and generously sponsored the events.

If nothing else, family members could have gotten free watermelon, ice cream, and hot dogs by entering into the eating contests.

Yours truly entered the ice cream eating contest and was beaten by a spoon at the finish line by a large and obviously hungry teenager.

While the kids had to eat Superman flavored ice cream furnished by Sweet Beans 'N Things, the adults feasted on Oreo ice cream, one of my all time favorite flavors.

I had no brain freeze and while I could have eaten more, the one cup that I ate in less than a minute was the best.

IGA furnished the hot dogs for the hot dog eating contest and Save-a-Lot cut up some nice looking watermelons for the watermelon eating contest.

While I didn't enter the hot dog contest, it was worthy of attending the event to watch participants wolf down hot dogs.

Our state representative, Terry Mills, even got in on the act but I can attest to the fact that he's a better legislator than he is at quickly eating hot dogs.

I think the winner got down 12 dogs in about five minutes. Again, he was a teenager who weighed less than I would guess — about 125 pounds.

And watching Marty Shackelford win the watermelon contest was a marvel. Having lost the equivalent of a high school student in terms of weight over the past few years, Shackelford was a watermelon eating machine and I know the reason why. In Georgia, we are raised on good watermelons.

Maybe not on par with The Apple Festival, the July 4th planning committee and its sponsors nonetheless deserve a hearty "thank you" for their hard work and financial contribution.

Next year, let's all celebrate the Independence Day holiday by having a little fun downtown.

cal beings having a spiritual experience. We are spiritual beings having a physical experience."

Physical, emotional, and spiritual intimacy are all essential to a fulfilling relationship where two people become one while maintaining their unique identities.

In "Couples Who Pray," authors Squire Rushnell and Louis DuArt challenge couples to pray together aloud for five minutes a day for 40 days, promising that the deeper level of spiritual intimacy will lead to a more fulfilling sex life. The authors maintain that love making, romance, and conversation increase 20-30 percent when couples practice praying aloud together and fear of divorce diminishes to 0 percent.

I'm not interested in the quality of Holmes' and Cruise's intimate life. However, Cruise's commitment to his faith and Holmes' apparent lack of the same appears to have created a rift.

Holmes was raised a Roman Catholic. Whether her conversion to Scientology was sincere and deliberate or a cavalier decision made in the heat of romance may be argued by both parties. According to Us Weekly, Holmes is fed up with Scientology's rules and its demands of child rearing. The couple has one daughter, 6-year-old Suri.

The venture of enjoying an intimate spiritual relationship within a marriage when the couple has totally different religious beliefs requires understanding, respect, and tolerance on the part of both people. The more convinced one partner is that his/her religious beliefs are the only legitimate expression of spirituality, the more problematic any unity becomes and the more likely the prospects are for a conflicted relationship. It's usually when children come into the picture that suppressed reservations of the other partner's beliefs emerge.

Tom Cruise is a devout member of Scientology, which maintains that our problems began 75 million years ago when Xenu, dictator of the "Galactic Confederacy," brought alien beings to our planet, placed them in volcanoes around the world, then vaporized them with hydrogen bombs, scattering the beings' spiritual essences across the atmosphere until they attached themselves to humans, harming us spiritually, resulting in a plague of psychological and social problems, maladies from which only Scientology can free us through a process called auditing.

When it comes to religion, you might say Tom is from Galactica; Katie is from Rome.

Mark Ebner, who has reported on celebrities and Scientology for 15 years, said on the Today Show, "When it comes to Hollywood couplings within Scientology, either you're in or out. There's no half measures there. If you're out, the marriage is as good as over."

To be sure, couples of different religions can have fulfilled, intimate marriages. And couples with identical religious beliefs can have failed ones.

But all things being equal, the closer a couple is spiritually, the easier it is to find intimacy at other levels as well, with each strengthening the next. Until two unique individuals, one from Mars the other from Venus, find themselves gradually becoming as one on Earth.

Prank calls worry citizens

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A telephone call in the form of a recorded message from the National Justice Center warning that a missed court date as a juror will cost them $500 or 30 days in jail is a prank.

However, local residents who received the calls aren't laughing.

Casey County Circuit Deputy Clerk Cameron Cain said that several people received these prank messages and then contacted the clerk's office, concerned about facing a large fine or jail time. Others just want to know if it's true.

Todd Carman received one of the messages and went to the clerk's office on Monday to inquire as to its validity.

"I really didn't think there was anything to it but I wanted to check," he said.

The one minute phone message from the Center — which doesn't exist — states that callers missed a court date as a juror and face a fine or jail time.

"If you are hearing this message it means that our records indicate that you failed to appear for jury duty last Monday morning at 9 a.m. Multiple notifications of your jury summons were sent to you both by the U.S. Postal Service and electronically to the e-mail address we have on file for you.

The call goes on to state that ignoring the jury summons is a class three misdemeanor. In Kentucky, misdemeanors are either Class A, B, or C.

Callers are then asked to pick one of three options — pay the $500 fine, go to jail for 30 days, or choose the third option, which states that the call is a joke.

"You may choose to pay it forward and simply pass this phone number on to your top-10 most gullible friends and attempt to trick them into thinking that this

To qualify for jury service, a person must:

- Be 18 years of age or older.
- Be a United States citizen.
- Be a resident of the county in which the case is to be tried.
- Be able to speak and understand English.
- Not have been convicted of a felony, unless pardoned or had his or her civil rights restored by the governor or other authorized person of the jurisdiction in which he or she was convicted.
- Not be currently under indictment.
- Not have served on a jury within the past 24 months.

Source: The Kentucky Court of Justice is actually a real 'failure to appear' for jury duty notification, in much the same way that whoever gave you this number to call has apparently just tricked you."

But the joke may end up being on the caller should someone complain to authorities.

Casey County Attorney Tom Weddle said that calls such as these can be prosecuted.

"Under KRS. 525.080, this could be classified as harassing communications," Weddle said.

The law states that it's categorized as a Class B misdemeanor where a person intends to "intimidate, harass, annoy, or alarm another person anonymously or otherwise by telephone in a manner which causes annoyance or alarm and serves no purpose of legitimate communication."

Weddle said that the charge carries a $250 fine or 90 days in jail or both.

Also, Weddle said that should someone who received the call wish to make a formal complaint, it could be done through the Liberty Police Department, Casey County Sheriff's Office, or the Kentucky State Police.

Juror selection

Casey County jurors are chosen from a master list of names which include residents filing a Kentucky resident individual tax return, registered voters, and licensed drivers over the age of 18.

"They'll get a letter mailed from Frankfort from us telling them to appear for jury duty on a set date," said Casey Circuit Clerk Craig Overstreet.

Included with the letter is a questionnaire detailing qualifications for serving on a jury. The form also asks for personal information such as place of employment, prior involvement in lawsuits and prior criminal record.

Then, Overstreet said, the person appears on an assigned date for orientation at which time the prospective juror is given a letter with court dates for a four-month period and phone numbers to contact if they have to appear as a juror.

"Jurors call the number the night before the court date and we tell them whether they're supposed to be here or not," Overstreet said, adding that his office never contacts anyone by e-mail.

Should a juror fail to appear, then Overstreet's office issues a summons that will be served by the sheriff's office.

Overstreet said that this rarely happens but there are occasions where a juror will forget a court date.

"If we have to call you, you will know that it's from us, from my office," Overstreet said.

store of his own, so Abe built a building across from Abe's Food Market on Woodrum Ridge Road.

George Abe rented from him and started the family's fourth grocery store, Abe's Pic-Pac in March 1980.

"We stayed in the old store until George was ready to open — that's when daddy closed," Goode said.

After retirement, Abe visited George at his store regularly and helped Sheila and her husband with Freddie Goode's Marathon.

"Abe came in a lot," said Sandy Rowland Sneed, who worked at Abe's Pic-Pac as a cashier on the first day it opened.

"It was very busy," Sneed said on the first day. She, Meta Rose Carter and George Abe's wife, Suzanne, were all on the cash register.

"They all knew Suzie from the old store and everyone wanted to go through Suzie's checkout line," she said. "She was so busy. I remember George Abe coming out there and saying 'Give these girls a chance, you'll like them too.' And they did. Suzie finally got a little break."

George Abe continued his father's high standards of helping customers and the people who worked for him.

"George Abe was a good man to work for," Sneed said. "Him and his wife, Suzie, were both always kind to me. It was a great place to work."

Meta Rose Carter, who worked as a cashier for two years, feels the same way.

"He was very good to work for, him and Suzie both were," Carter said. "Abe and Pearl were wonderful people to me too. They're just good people."

Carter remembers one customer they were particularly good to.

"He couldn't read or write, and didn't know money or anything," Carter said. "We would do his grocery shopping for him and then him and George would settle up. They didn't care how much you had or how little you had, they treated everybody the same."

George Abe continued the tradition of carrying out customer's groceries to their car.

"We carried groceries out for everybody," Goode said.

Mike Meece started out stocking shelves at Abe's Pic-Pac a few weeks after it opened.

"I worked at Abe's (Pic-Pac) for almost seven years and I learned a lot of things from George Abe, first of all was being very honest," Meece said.

He remembers that anytime there were errors in the shipments, whether it was in George Abe's favor or not, he would speak up. One time a pallet of coffee was labeled as something a lot cheaper, "but George directly let the driver know and called the company instead of taking advantage of it."

Meece was an employee at Abe's Pic-Pac when Save-A-Lot came to town and offered him a position as manager.

"I went to him at his house that night about them offering me a job and he encouraged me to take it," Meece said. "He always encouraged anybody to do better."

He took the job but still sought George Abe's advice and talked with him regularly.

"We were still great friends after I went to Save-A-Lot," he said.

Meece went on to become owner of the Save-A-Lot for 25 years, but credits George Abe and Suzie for what he learned from them.

"Without them we wouldn't have had the success that we did in the grocery business," he said.

Like his father, George Abe was a hard worker and worked from daylight to dark.

"George Abe was a man that stayed at the store," Meece said. He would get there around 7 a.m. and would stay until 10 o'clock most nights.

All of the employees pitched together to buy George Abe a coffee pot with a timer on it for his birthday one year so he would have coffee ready when he got into work.

"He just thought that was a great present," Sneed said. "That really did tickle him."

Meece recalls a time George Abe returned to the store from a dentist appointment.

"He brought me his appointment card for the next time and told me to tell them, next time call him when the seat is ready," Meece said with a laugh. "He didn't like to be away from the store at all."

Which is why it was a "big shock" for Meece when he woke up to George Abe's presence in the hospital after Meece had a double lung transplant.

"It's just something George never would do. He hardly left the store for anything, but he came, him and Suzie, to see me at the hospital in Louisville," Meece said.

Due to health, George Abe closed the doors of Abe's Pic-Pac in November of 2010.

George learned from the best, and Meece learned from him.

"It was one of the best experiences I could have ever gotten," he said. "George was top of the line and one of the best grocery owners and managers that was in Liberty. Abe was a very good grocery man too — one of the first in Liberty."

in the future. Also, the operator of the canteen knows the date that the report is to be submitted to the county treasurer," Miller said.

Auditors also found that the canteen account was not being reconciled with daily checkout sheets, daily receipts and disbursement journals, and a summary and reconciliation statement.

Daily checkout sheets didn't include sufficient detail of receipts collected nor did the receipts journal include sufficient detail of receipts collected.

Also, disbursements' journals didn't include all disbursements paid to vendors or provide sufficient detail of disbursements.

Miller again stated that the canteen operator didn't have the necessary forms required to complete the daily journals.

"I have spoken to and given all required forms to the canteen operator. Have set up training with the new software people who assure me that all the required forms are in the new software and that the canteen operator will be trained according to state requirements for reporting," Miller said.

Concerning sales tax returns on the jail canteen, auditors discovered that the majority of sales tax returns were calculated incorrectly and were submitted late resulting in $376 of penalties and interest for fiscal year 2011.

According to Kentucky law, sales taxes are due and payable to the Kentucky Department of Revenue monthly, on or before the 20th day of the month.

Miller replied that he now reviews all sales tax returns and signs them.

"The canteen officer was not aware of the reporting dates that the reports were to be filed," Miller said. "The new software has this report and is programmed to remind and print the sales tax document on a date that will give enough time to be submitted to State Revenue."

Still, Miller said that he'll take a harder look at auditors' recommendations.

"I'm trying to implement all the recommendations," he said.

Dr. George W. Sweeney, 90

For the first time in over 100 years, Casey County is without a Dr. Sweeney.

Dr. George William Sweeney passed away July 6 at his home in Liberty. He was 90 years old.

Dr. George was born on April 23, 1922 at the same address where he lived until his death. George was married to Mollie Kathryn Popplewell Sweeney for 42 years. She died in 1989.

The youngest child of William Jasper and Edna Jones Sweeney, he was preceded in death by two brothers, Charles Jasper and Dr. Garnett Jones Sweeney; two sisters, Lucy Sweeney Wash and Ruth Sweeney Wesley; and a grandson, Jason Oliver Coffey.

A precocious child and an athletic teen, George never shied away from hard work on the small family farm. He graduated from Liberty High School and went on to attend the University of Kentucky. In 1942, after two years of college, George enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He served in the North Atlantic on the U.S.S. Bogue and ended his war service in the South Pacific.

In 1944 George married his childhood sweetheart, Mollie, and they returned to Lexington where he finished his undergraduate studies. In 1947 they moved to Louisville where he completed his Doctor of Medicine and his residency.

In 1951 they returned to Liberty where he joined his brother in the medical practice that was begun by their late father. George and Mollie had four children who survive, Suzanne LaFavers (and Mickey), Steve Sweeney (and Rita Godbey Sweeney), Lydia Coffey (and Jim) and Sally Davis (and Ronnie).

SWEENEY

Also surviving are eight grandchildren, Lisa LaFavers Combs, Mike Sweeney LaFavers, Larra Sweeney Johnson, Beth Sweeney Kress, Katy Sweeney Wilson, Luke William Davis, Matt Winston Davis and Meredith Kathryn Coffey. He also leaves behind 12 great-grandchildren, Zack and Kathryn Combs, Mollie, Madelyn and Will LaFavers, Elizabeth, Henry and Mollie Johnson, Lucy and Jack Wilson, George and Annie Davis and soon to be number 13, Baby Davis. He is also survived by his brother-in-law and best friend, Paul Wesley.

Dr. George said his greatest accomplishment was graduating from medical school. He practiced with his brother Garnett and Dr. Lewis Wesley until the death of Dr. Wesley. Dr. Garnett and Dr. George retired from their practice in 1996.

He will be remembered for being a compassionate doctor, a caring person who quietly served his community and a humble man who lived simply and loved much. He will be greatly missed.

Dr. George was a lifetime member of First Christian Church, where he was remembered with an informal memorial service on July 8. A private burial will take place at a later time.

In lieu of flowers, Dr. George would be pleased to have donations to First Christian Church, P.O. Box 8, Liberty, KY 42539 or Hospice of Lake Cumberland, 100 Parkway Dr., Somerset, KY 42502.

New road to open

ADAIR COUNTY — The new Ky. 61 will open to traffic between Sparksville to just south of the Louie B. Nunn Parkway in Adair County on July 11, weather permitting.

The $22.7 million project, which began in 2008, reconstructs and realigns Ky. 61 from Sparksville to just south of the newly constructed ramps with the Louis B. Nunn Parkway.

The new alignment is approximately six miles long and consists of two lanes with truck passing lanes on steeper grades and 8-foot paved shoulders.

The Kentucky Department of Transportation urges motorists to be on guard for traffic shifts onto the newly constructed roadway.

Drivers should expect delays and are encouraged to allow extra time in reaching their destination.

Cheddar's Restaurant seeks
P & Z approval

BOYLE COUNTY — A plan to bring Cheddar's Casual Cafe to the South Danville Bypass next to Walmart was approved July 3 by the Danville-Boyle County Planning and Zoning, but before any building begins, the company must meet a list of conditions.

The conditions include obtaining necessary signatures from utility companies for the property, official ownership information and approval for a property variance allowing a shorter setback from the road.

If the conditions are met, the restaurant will be located on the 2.05-acre plot on the corner of Walton Avenue and Walton Crossing, which is owned by Walmart.

The plot had been designated as green space until P&Z granted Walmart's request to eliminate a conservation easement at its meeting last month.

Another condition includes buying a piece of property the city put up for bid last month. Cheddar's will use the property for parking, and the bids will be opened July 27.

Cheddar's restaurants normally have a minimum of 200 parking spaces, but the company can move forward with 175 spaces for the Danville location.

Crab Orchard gets new park

LINCOLN COUNTY — The former salvage yard property across from city hall in Crab Orchard has been transformed into the beginnings of a park, complete with landscaping, walking path, and basketball court.

The property was given to the city by owner Cecil King after he closed his scrap yard in 2005.

In 2010, the city received a $200,000 federal grant to clean up the property.

The Kentucky Department of Environmental Regulation and the Environmental Protection Agency found that the property was contaminated with toxic chemicals called polycyclic hydrocarbon chemicals, which come from cars.

Until several feet of topsoil on the site could be removed with fresh topsoil replacing it, the EPA ruled the land unusable.

'Jets over Kentucky' event is this weekend

MARION COUNTY — Nicky Reynolds, executive director of the Lebanon Tourist & Convention Commission, will be experiencing Jets Over Kentucky for the first time this year.

Reynolds said that when you hear 'remote control jet,' most people typically think of a two- to three-foot model. But these planes are anywhere from 10- to 14-feet long.

Spectators are invited to go to the airport throughout this week to watch the pilots practice, but the main show isn't until Friday.

A $5 fee will be charged for attendees ages 12 and up, but children under the age of 12 are free. Gates will open to the public at 8 a.m. both days.

On Friday evening, July 13, at dark, there will be a "Parade of Lights," where all of the jets turn on their lights and travel in parade formation down the tarmac. Immediately following the parade will be an hour-long fireworks display.

Saturday, July 14, the opening ceremonies will take place at noon, followed by the "Fighter Jet Showdown." Spectators can expect to see everything that they've seen at a full scale aerobatic jet show, including high speed passes, 9G turns, and simulated bomb runs.

Reynolds said she hopes visitors and locals alike take advantage of this unique event.

Pilots will actually be giving people a more up-close view of the planes this year. For the first time, tours of the private plane tents will be offered by some of the pilots. Since spectators are not allowed to touch the planes this is an opportunity to get close to these unique machines. The tours will begin at noon on Friday and Saturday, and take place on the hour until dark.

Coroner indicted

PULASKI COUNTY — Pulaski County Coroner Richard New has been indicted by a grand jury charging him with 26 counts of theft that allegedly occurred at a funeral home where he once worked.

Trooper Don Trosper with KSP Post 15 in Columbia stated that the thefts occurred over a nine-year span at Lake Cumberland Funeral Home, totaling about $60,000.

New was fired from his managerial job at the home in May 2011.

New's attorney, John Gillum, said in a statement to the newspaper that although he had not seen any indictment, he was made aware that New's former employer now alleges that (New) was stealing from them. He said that New would be exonerated of the theft charges.

Gillum questioned the timing of the indictment because New owns Southern Oaks Funeral Home, located on the Ky. 914 Bypass.

An attorney for the Lake Cumberland Funeral Home's board, Bruce Orwin, said the board of directors had nothing to do with the indictment's timing.

Orwin also stated that New was terminated from his position at Lake Cumberland Funeral Home after the board discovered some financial irregularities.

Orwin said KSP brought in a forensic accountant to scan the funeral home's financial records.

Accountants found a number of things the board didn't know about, Orwin said, adding that there were other things the state police found on their own.

Farmers learn about tunnel farming

RUSSELL COUNTY — A Russell County farmer, Rickie Bernard, was presented a Certificate of Appreciation from Lacey Graw, Assistant State Conservationist for Field Office Operations for being the first farmer in Kentucky to implement a seasonal high tunnel system.

About 100 people gathered at Bernard's farm on June 28 to learn about farming using the tunnel system.

The system, which produces crops using a plastic covered tunnel structure, extends the growing season of vegetables and other specialty crops planted in soil under the tunnel.

Bernard said that the tunnel gives him an earlier and later growing season, which allows him an opportunity to get higher prices for his produce.

Bernard received financial assistance from the Natural Resource Conservation Service's Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP).

In addition, EQIP provides farmers with technical directions as to how to use the tunnel system

After being approved for the program, Bernard bought a 30 foot by 96 foot tunnel construction kit and after construction, had tomato plants in the ground a week later.

The difference between a tunnel and a greenhouse lies in the farmer's ability to use a tractor in the tunnel.

Bernard produces tomatoes from about 7,500 plants and sells much of the produce locally.

Man sentenced to 15 years in prison

TAYLOR COUNTY — A Campbellsville man will serve 15 years in jail after pleading guilty to an amended count of second-degree assault in LaRue Circuit Court.

Jimmy Dean Underwood, 47, of Coakley Road, was charged Jan. 29 with first-degree assault, first-degree wanton endangerment, driving on a license suspended for DUI, DUI, his second offense, reckless driving and possession of an open container in vehicle.

According to court records, Underwood, who was driving a 1998 Mercury on the wrong side of Gleanings Road, struck Robert Russell Ray, 60, of Bardstown, who was driving a 2003 Kawasaki motorcycle.

Ray suffered severe arm and leg injuries and was flown by medical hospital to University Hospital in Louisville.

LaRue County Deputy Eric Williamson said Ray was resuscitated on the way to the hospital.

Underwood, according to Williamson, failed a field sobriety test and had a .2 blood alcohol level, higher than the legal limit of .08.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Whitney Meredith said Underwood accepted a plea agreement Friday, June 19, at a pre-trial conference. He waived a pre-sentencing investigation and hearing, according to Meredith, and was sentenced to serve 15 years in prison.

According to court records, Underwood was convicted of a DUI charge in LaRue County in 2002.

Underwood is incarcerated at the LaRue County Detention Center.

Some things should never change

Originally published in the Aug. 9, 1962 issue of The Casey County News

Over the years it has been interesting to watch the people in small towns and rural areas change their habits, the way they dress, and the way they act after the city people.

These and other changes in social customs are slower to come about in rural areas than in the cities, but, nevertheless, they do come about and every now and then you hear someone say, "They are doing such-and-such in Cincinnati now. It won't be long until people here will be doing it too."

But there is one social custom common to rural areas that we hope will never change, and that is friendliness. The city people have got much too far to go, too many things on their minds, too much to do, and are just plain living too fast to be neighborly.

It seems a little far fetched to think that such a thing as friendliness could die out but our time is being taken up more by business, television, and movies.

Neighbors do not have to depend upon each other as much as they used to because of new and improved farm machinery. Instead of trading labor, most people just hire temporary help for tobacco cutting or hay baling.

When visitors from the city remark that they like the people, it reminds us that people, and especially friends, are still the most valuable things we have around here.

Loans bridge gap between college costs, student aid

Many sources of financial aid are available to help college-bound students pay higher education expenses, including federal and state grants, scholarships and Federal Stafford and PLUS Loans.

In addition, merit-based scholarships and need-based grants are often available at the local level, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Sometimes these sources are not enough to cover all the costs. When that happens, parents and students may take advantage of private student loans, also called alternative loans.

The interest rate on private loans will largely depend on the borrower's credit rating, so students and parents may have to pay higher interest rates than they would on federal student loans. In addition, many lenders require students to have a cosigner, and some require the college to certify that the student needs the loan.

Students and parents are encouraged to do research before committing to any loan. They should compare the loans offered by various lenders to find the best possible deal. The KHEAA Marketplace, online at www.kheeamarketplace.com, lets students compare loans from several lenders to find the one that best meets their needs.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers Kentucky's student aid programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES).

For more information, visit www.gotocollege.ky.gov and www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call 800-928-8926, ext. 6-7372.

CAIP producer applications available July 12

The Kentucky Agricultural Development Board, chaired by Gov. Steve Beshear, recently awarded $250,000 in Casey County Agricultural Development Funds for a County Agricultural Investment Program (CAIP).

The Casey County Conservation District submitted a proposal to the Casey County Agricultural Development Council and the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board to provide cost-share incentives to area farmers.

"I am committed to giving our farmers the tools and resources they need to remain competitive and continue Kentucky's strong farming tradition," said Gov. Beshear. "County Agricultural Investment Programs funded by the Kentucky Agricultural Development Board provide important on-farm investment opportunities."

CAIP is designed to provide farmers with incentives to allow them to improve and diversify their current production practices. CAIP combines what were previously known as county model cost-share programs into one, where each model program becomes an investment area.

CAIP covers a wide variety of agricultural enterprises in its 11 investment areas, including commercial production of aquaculture; bees and honey; equine; forage; fruit; livestock; mushrooms; ornamental horticulture; poultry; rabbits; timber; and vegetables, as well as agritourism business development; commercial kitchen construction or conversion; energy efficiency/production; and on-farm water enhancement.

Producer applications will be available beginning Thursday, July 12 at the Casey County Conservation District Office, 1498 S. Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard Suite 2, Liberty, Ky. 42539. All completed applications are due by Tuesday, July 31.

For more information about the sign-up period and the complete guidelines for this program in Casey County, contact Lonnie Mullins with the conservation district at 606-787-2017 ext. 3.

July is membership drive month for Casey Homemakers

July is Casey County Extension Homemakers membership drive month. Our new program year begins August 1 and we are very excited about all Extension Homemakers has to offer you. There is something for everyone.

Extension Homemakers currently offers:

■ Membership dues of $7 per year includes membership in Casey County Extension Homemakers, Lake Cumberland Area Extension Homemakers and Kentucky Extension Homemaker Association. You have all kinds of local, area and state experiences and fun learning opportunities.

■ Club or Mailbox Membership – If you like meeting with a group you can join one of our current clubs, start a brand new club with a group of friends or you can be a mailbox member. Club membership offers a friendly group atmosphere with fun and fellowship, as well as learning opportunities. Mailbox membership

Debbie SHEPHERD
County Extension
Agent for Home

offers all the benefits of being an Extension Homemaker without designation to a specific club meeting. You are welcome to join in on any activity and event being offered. Mailbox membership is a wonderful way for those who may have a hectic schedule and may not want to commit to a monthly club meeting but would like all the benefits of being an Extension Homemaker and the opportunities the organization has to offer.

We currently have five clubs; Country Ladies, Creston, Friendship, Grove Ridge and Jr. Extension Homemakers. All the clubs are very welcoming to new members and are unique and special in their individual ways. We would also very much welcome anyone who wished to start a new club.

A monthly newsletter that includes information on upcoming events, educational information, recipes, articles of interest, etc. is sent to members via their choice of electronically or mailed. You can also find information via the Casey County Extension website under Family and Consumer Sciences and by friending Debbie Shepherd, Liberty on Facebook. Membership also includes the state KEHA newsletters.

Monthly educational lessons are available. Some of the topics in the line-up for our 2012-2013 program year — Breathe Stretch, Meditate, Plate It Up, Power of Motivation, Edible Vegetables and Fruit, Extension Support of Military Families, Kentucky Vacations, Herbs, Managing In Tough Times, Fish Cookery, Couponing and Master Clothing Volunteer led sewing projects, Ovarian Cancer Screening, and Cultural Arts. We also try to plan a couple of road trips/tours a year. Extension Homemakers offers many fun and interesting learning opportunities!

Community service is also a vital part of Extension Homemakers. If you enjoy doing things for others and our community, we have a lot to offer and are always looking for new ideas too. We currently make "Burn-out Quilts" for families who are victims of house fires, lap robes and comfort caps for those receiving cancer treatments, Linus blankets for local children in need, fund raise for 4-H Camp scholarships and Casey County High School graduate scholarships, care kits for the nursing home, books to support early literacy for our local children, working local blood drives, Casey County Fair Floral Hall, and much more.

If you would like to know more about what Extension Homemakers has to offer you, just drop by or call the Casey County Extension Office, 787-7384.

Artists invited to submit work

The Ohio Valley Art League and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources are inviting artists to submit entries for the 2012 Kentucky National Wildlife Art exhibit.

Artists may submit works depicting birds, mammals, reptiles and aquatic life native to United States in multi-media, oil, acrylic, graphite, bronze sculptures, woodcarvings, pastel, serigraph and watercolor.

Awards totaling more than $10,000 will be presented to artists. Artists must be U.S. residents and at least 18 years old. Entries will be accepted by email and CDs until July

Interested artists should go online to www.ohiovalleyart.org to download a prospectus.

Wildlife artwork will be displayed at the 10th biennial Kentucky National Wildlife Art Exhibit, held at the Henderson Fine Arts Center in Henderson, Ky. The exhibit opens to the public at 6 p.m. Oct. 13.

For examples from the 2010 exhibit, visit www.ohiovalleyart.org. For more information, contact Jule McClellan, executive director and curator of the Ohio Valley Art League at 270-860-1930 or email jule@ohiovalleyart.org.

Jack Ballard, president of CMW, an architectural firm in Lexington, addresses city and county officials on June 29 at City Hall concerning the design of the Casey County Community and Education Center.

College

“We have about $625,000 from the county, city, and the EDA, and we’re looking to the AD District to help us with grant funding for the rest,” Staat said, adding that the grant process begins in September.

Ballard said that the building, with about 15,000-square feet, will feature six classrooms, a large community room that can be divided into two additional classrooms, a computer lab, student lounge, a Workforce Investment Act office and other administration offices.

In addition to restrooms, the 2,300-square foot basement will be used for storage.

The classrooms, each of which should accommodate about 30 students, will be wired for the latest technology and will be constructed in a manner that will allow for easy upgrades, Ballard said.

And that’s good news to Judy Sapp, who serves as the director for Somerset Community College which currently meets in a metal building on North U.S. 127.

Sapp also emphasized the importance of having a large computer lab equipped with enough computers for students who don’t have the machines.

“Our students are very poor. Only about five people out of 350 bring laptop computers to SCC,” she said.

Ballard said should everything fall into place, construction will begin in the fall. Copies of all architectural designs can be viewed at City Hall.

walked to the Walnut Grove dairy farm, which was more than two miles east of Liberty on Ky. 70. Those were the days before electric milking machines so he milked 20 cows by hand. He then had to walk back to town to go to high school.

DiAnne McInnis recounted a story told to her by her mother, Mary E. Lester Elliott.

Mary E. and Dr. George were just a few weeks apart in age and started school together in Liberty. Their mothers walked them to school on the first day of first grade.

As their mothers started home, they looked back and here came Mary E. and George running. When asked what they were doing, George said, “I’m not going to school. I’m not going to be anything but a farmer, anyway.”

Dr. George went on to graduate from high school and started college but World War II interrupted his education. He volunteered for duty and served in the U.S. Navy from 1943 to 1945. He also served on the U.S. Bogue, one of the Navy’s large aircraft carriers that saw quite a lot of action the Atlantic.

After his stint in the Navy, Dr. George graduated from the University of Kentucky and went on to medical school at the University of Louisville.

When he graduated and finished his internship, he came back to Liberty and joined the medical practice of his brother, Dr. Garnett J. Sweeney, where both continued to practice until they retired in August 1996. He was 74 years old at that time.

An article in the July 3, 1952 edition of The Casey County News announced “Dr. George Sweeney Busy On First (Day) of Private Practice.” It went on to say “Dr. George Sweeney probably made some kind of record in his first day of private practice. He was busy with cases from minor surgery, a serious hospital case, to lesser cases.”

Barbara Sue Griffin, his niece, said her father, Dr. Garnett, told her that he didn’t ask Dr. George for money to buy into the practice.

“Dad said he told Uncle George that all he had to do was give him two weeks off,” she said.

Dr. George was one of the last of a breed that has almost died out – the “family doctor” who makes house calls. If a patient called, he went.

“One of my favorite family memories is of me sitting by the windows at night with the girls and Mom, waiting for Dad to get home from work. We’d all get in the car and head out over gravel roads on house calls with him. Most of the roads in those days were gravel because very few had been blacktopped. I remember making a house call with him in about 1962 when there were six- to seven-foot snow drifts on highway 1547,” Steve said.

Elaine Wesley’s husband, Dr. Lewis Wesley, who was always called “Dr. Lewis,” practiced with Dr. George and Dr. Garnett from June 1958 until his death in October 1995.

Elaine remembered Dr. George as a family man who rarely socialized outside his family. She did say he used to come to what they called the “drugstore doctor Christmas parties” and he was always the life of the party.

“He was such a kind person. You could sit down and talk with him and you could share your personal problems with him,” she said.

Friend and neighbor

Dr. Bradford Wesley, Dr. Lewis’ son, was Dr. George’s neighbor for several years. He said that when he was growing up he always thought of Dr. George as part of his family. “Casey County was blessed to have those three doctors. They were always there for everyone – it was always a 24/7 job for them. They just wanted Casey County to be a better place,” he said.

Wesley gave a lot of credit to the wives of the three doctors and said, “They couldn’t have done it without their wives and the good support they had from them.”

He went on to praise Dr. George’s wife, Molly by saying, “Molly was cool before cool was cool. She was so good with the young people. All the young boys went to their house in the summer and played basketball behind the house until late in the night. They were wholesome, good people.”

Dr. George was a wonderful gardener and raised more than 55 consecutive gardens – one behind his house and a large one between the houses of his daughters, Lydia and Sally.

Wesley remembered Dr. George’s infamous towering tomato plants. He recalls being enlisted by Dr. George to help him put up wooden planks to support the plants. One day he and Dr. George put a ladder in the bed of his pickup truck and Wesley climbed to the top to insert the boards into the ground with a sledgehammer.

“Neither one of us should have been up on that ladder,” he said, laughing, “but it was better that I do it than Dr. George.”

Fond memories

Garland Hoskins, former Casey County judge/executive, remembers Dr. George fondly.

“Dr. George and Molly were my heroes, so to speak. I can’t think of anybody I looked up to more than Dr. George. I have a lot of fond memories of him,” he said.

Hoskins said Dr. George delivered his daughter, Stacey. When his wife, Dale, was in labor for 36 hours with his other daughter, Tammy, he said that Dr. George, Dr. Garnett, and Dr. Lewis stayed with her around the clock.

“Dr. George was just the greatest. My words wouldn’t be adequate to describe him.

My whole family had a lot of admiration for him,” Hoskins said.

McInnis said that Dr. George and Molly were the best example of a couple – all they needed was each other and their family.

McInnis’ mother, in addition to being the same age as Dr. George, was also his neighbor when they were growing up.

McInnis said her mother told her many times how she and George would catch tadpoles in the river behind the spot where the Gateway Park Community Center is these days.

Her grandmother, “Will” Lester, told McInnis that she always preferred having Dr. George make a house call over Dr. Garnett because she could always talk Dr. George out of giving her a shot but she never could talk Dr. Garnett out of one.

Dr. George was also known as an excellent cook and baker, baking cakes for different charities to raffle or for people who were very special to him.

Christine Gosser, one of the office nurses in the practice for many years, said that the first time she ever ate apple dumpplings was when Dr. George and Molly brought them to the office.

Gosser said that Dr. George had a top-of-the-line sense of humor that could at times be “sneaky and unexpected.”

Gosser also remembers Dr. George as being one with “the common man,” always accepting everyone’s personal style and identifying with those who had had hard times.

“It’s hard for me to talk about just one of the three doctors because I thought all of them were the best people to work for but Dr. George was extra special to me. He was so good to me and my family,” Gosser said.

Memorial services were conducted at Liberty First Christian Church on July 8. A complete obituary can be found on page 4.

SPORTS TALK

Appreciating one of the world's most popular sports

I am finding myself more and more ashamed of my ignorance of one of the world's most popular sports: soccer, aka "football". In addition to growing up in a nation where the sport was always shadowed by basketball, football and baseball, soccer was never available in our county athletic facilities.

As an adult, I am realizing what I have been missing, and apparently much of this country is as well. A study conducted by ESPN/Luker polls in 2011 shows soccer to be the second most popular sport in the 12-24 age group, right behind football, with basketball at number three.

Without purposefully planning it, I found myself in Brazil during the kickoff of the 2010 World Cup when visiting a former Casey County High School exchange student, Gui Buso. Of course, now, I realize I should have planned the trip for 2014 (or need to plan another trip??) when the event will be hosted by Brazil.

Simply being in the country that prides themselves on the sport beyond all else was incredible. Their McDonald's menu was even redone with a specialty "World Cup Menu" — a sandwich for every nation. No, the U.S. was not represented. You could not go anywhere without seeing people in soccer jersey. A trip to the soccer museum in Sao Paulo was included on our itinerary.

Rita "Peat" HARRIS
Sports Correspondent

I also had the pleasure of attending one of the last games played in the famous "Maracana" stadium in Rio de Janeiro before it went under construction for the 2014 World Cup. (We were told at the time it was the last game to be played but I cannot find confirmation of that.)

Home stadium of the Flamengo, the Maracanawas was once the world's largest soccer stadium seating 200,000 people. Several renovations have brought that number down over the years and its current construction results in just over 75,000 seats, but with much more comfort.

Despite the rainy evening and the close to 85,000-seat stadium being far from full, the atmosphere did not lack enthusiasm. Drums, chants, cheers... I did not know a word but still found myself attempting to sing along.

Some argue soccer to be a 'boring' sport. I am quickly learning this is simply a lack of understanding the sport. My husband, an avid soccer player through his youth, can easily get sucked into a game.

He always points out that his biggest beef with basketball is the drawn-out endings with time-out after time-out, where 59-seconds turns into 30-minutes. With soccer, the clock never stops and neither do the athletes. It's 90-minutes of sweat and action. I just have yet to learn all of the words and terminology to quite keep up.

The recent report from ESPN/Luker reflecting the youth's rising interest in this sport excites me and seeing that Casey County is following that trend definitely excites me.

Soccer had its first season in the middle school this past spring with team members spanning from eighth graders down to the elementary level. I had the pleasure of watching their first game of the season and despite coming up short of a win, it was incredible to see the vast improvement of these young athletes from the first to second half of the game. I can only imagine how far they had come by the close of their season.

Like any sport, soccer skills take time to develop; the good news is, it is an easy sport to dive into. I remember while in Brazil, Gui told me that soccer is to them what basketball is to us: as a toddler you begin learning to dribble a ball... but in Brazil it is dribbling with your feet instead of your hands.

If you never have in the past, learn something about soccer and give it a chance for your attention. I think you will find yourself loving it more than you might expect.

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT

Jeffries wraps up final season as college athlete

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

Brad Jeffries graduated from Casey County High School in 2011 and headed to Campbellsville on the agreement to continue his sports career as either a basketball or tennis athlete for the Tigers.

JEFFRIES

Despite surpassing the 1,000-point mark in his basketball career at CCHS and breaking the school's 3-point record, Jeffries opted for tennis, a sport he spent six years competing in as a Rebel. During that time he claimed four 12th Region Tournament titles: two doubles titles in 2007 and 2008 with his brother Chad, followed by two singles titles in 2010 and 2011. Jeffries recently transferred to the University of Louisville.

RH: What did you like most about your collegiate athlete experience?

BJ: I really enjoyed the atmosphere of it and the people I encountered. I mean, just the work ethic of the guys on the team and the respect each one gave to one another.

RH: If you were toying with the idea of playing basketball or tennis for Campbellsville, how did you make the final decision?

BJ: I really wanted to play basketball. That had always been my dream. From when I started playing basketball I wanted to play college ball and when the opportunity arose, it was so hard to pass on it. But I had a much better offer with tennis and I had a better chance on moving up the rankings as a freshman than I did in basketball. I wish there was somehow I could have done both but I'm happy with the decision that I made.

RH: Did you accomplish any major goals or milestones while on the collegiate level?

BJ: I accomplished a few goals. I was really wanting to be able to focus, not only on tennis, but my academics too. I made honor roll both semesters and finished the first year with like a 3.6 GPA (grade point average) or something like that. And when it comes to tennis I really was able to excel my game to a new level. I was able to change my attitude about the game, which really helped me focus on what I was doing on the court. I grew as a player so much, I found my groove and, although I wasn't a top player, I was able to contend with some of the lower seeded guys...and, I know when I say lower seeded guys, you think, "How have I grown?" I mean, I was top seed in high school. I played on one of the NAIA's finest programs. So I was really happy with the way my game evolved.

RH: Were you a part of any special awards or accomplishments at your school?

BJ: Special awards? First of all, I was a part of the Campbellsville Intramural Championship team (laugh). But on a serious note, I was apart of the NCCAA (National Christian College Athletic Association) Championship team. Although I didn't contend in the matches, I practiced day in and day out with those guys, and if all I did was push them to work harder, then I feel I did my job!

RH: What were your main motivations for switching to U of L and when did you decide to make the transfer?

BJ: My main motivation, to be honest was my fiancé, Kelcie Murphy, but there were many other factors that caused me to transfer. A huge reason was because my body is just letting me know. I really didn't know what it would take to be a college athlete. I always worked hard in high school and always had the energy to do whatever it took, but in this last year my body is aging like crazy. A year ago I could play a basketball game a week and then play hours of tennis on the weekend and I was ready to go every chance. But in college, when I got back to my dorm, I was ready to just collapse. My knees, shins, elbow, and shoulder gave me a lot of trouble and I just thought it was time to give in.

RH: I know tennis is a sport that is easy to continue past your high school or college team years. Do you plan to continue playing and in what ways?

BJ: Yes, I am looking to continue on with my tennis life just not so intensely. I am going to try and play in the future with family and friends, and really just use it for exercise and enjoyment. I also am going to try and coach a tennis program once I get out of school.

RH: What are you studying currently and do you have any post-graduation plans?

BJ: I am currently studying in the education field. I am planning on getting a degree in physical education and right after graduation I will follow up with my masters. I am hoping to teach and coach at a school up around Louisville.

I am a Debt Relief Agency.

HOROSCOPES

CAPRICORN

December 22-January 19

Now may be the time to get serious about your efforts to find a new job. Capricorn. Start doing the legwork and get your name out to new people as much as you can.

AQUARIUS

January 20-February 18

Although you're a do-it-yourself person by nature, Aquarius, sometimes letting someone get the job done frees you up for more important projects. You also get a needed break.

PISCES

February 19-March 20

Pisces, you can't seem to keep your mind on the thing at hand. Your wandering thoughts may put you in tune with a better idea.

ARIES

March 21-April 19

Aries, the week may begin a little off-kilter, but you'll find that by Wednesday or Thursday, things turn around significantly. A couple of opportunities for socialization arise.

JULY 11-17

TAURUS

April 20-May 20

Take inventory of your life this week, Taurus, and make the necessary tweaks to align you with your primary goals. Take a cue from someone organized.

GEMINI

May 21-June 21

Gemini, you're inspired to do something creative. Narrow down the possibilities. Maybe you want to paint indoors or take on a new craft hobby. Either way you'll find success.

CANCER

June 22-July 22

Even the most organized people can get tripped up once in a while, Cancer. This week you may be unable to keep track of things. Keep your cool, and you will get it under control.

LEO

July 23-August 22

Take control of a situation that arises, Leo, because right now it seems no one else is capable of handling the situation. You may prove to be an excellent leader.

VIRGO

August 23-September 22

Influential people will be moving in your social circles, Virgo. Failure to introduce yourself and network could lead to setbacks in your employment goals.

LIBRA

September 23-October 22

Once the excitement of an event wears off, Libra, you may be left floundering for a little while. Don't wallow in boredom. Get started on a new project.

SCORPIO

October 23-November 21

Sometimes much more can be said by remaining quiet than actually speaking, Scorpio. Keep this in mind when you are socializing with new people.

SAGITTARIUS

November 22-December 21

It can sometimes feel lonely at the top, Sagittarius. Now that you've acquired many of the things you wanted, the resulting feelings may not be what you thought.

Street Lighting Service - Rate ST. LT.
and
Private Outdoor Lighting - Rate P. O. LT.

Street Lighting Service (Rate ST.LT. – Sheet No. 35) and Private Outdoor Lighting Service (Rate P.O.LT. – Sheet No. 36) are being reorganized into two rate schedules. The first schedule will be named Lighting Services (Rate LS) and will be a consolidation of lighting fixtures currently offered. The second schedule will be named Restricted Lighting Service (Rate RLS) and will be a consolidation of lighting fixtures that are in service but no longer available for new or replacement installations. The current and proposed rates are presented below based on the lights to be included in Rate LS and Rate RLS. The lights proposed to be contained in the specific schedule are shown in bold type with the current light and rate sheet shown below the proposed light.

Three arrested on meth charges

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

Three Casey County residents face drug charges involving methamphetamine in two separate incidents.

In the most recent case, Sheriff Jerry Coffman said that Glen Clay Naylor, 40, of 10786 Ky. 1547, Liberty, was arrested on Monday at Leah's Grocery, which is located next to his residence.

Naylor was charged with first offense manufacturing meth and taken to the Casey County Detention Center.

Coffman said that officers had been watching Naylor for the past several months.

"We got tips that something drug-related was going on and we made a couple of searches in the past few months," Coffman said. "There was something going on in the store late at night," he said.

On Monday, officers received another tip and Naylor gave authorities consent to search the store and residence.

"We found an active meth lab in the store and residence with meth that had already been processed," Coffman said.

Additionally, officers found ingredients for making meth such as empty battery packs, empty boxes of pseudoephedrine, Coleman fuel, and red lye, Coffman said.

Coffman said that officers trained to decontaminate a meth scene spent several hours properly disposing of the ingredients and decontaminating the store and residence.

Additionally, the sheriff said that Naylor's two children — ages 7 and 2 — were taken to Casey County Hospital to be examined for symptoms related to meth exposure.

"I understand that the kids were OK," Coffman said, adding that Naylor's wife has not been charged.

When asked if customers in the store could have been exposed to meth, Coffman said that it's a possibility.

The store is closed and Coffman said that officers are happy to follow-up on tips from members of the community.

"We just want the community to know that we're trying to do something," he said.

Naylor appeared in Casey District Court on Tuesday morning and bond was set at $25,000 cash. His next appearance in district court is on Tuesday.

Liberty meth arrests

Jerold Scott Waddle, 37, of 130 Dillon St., Liberty, was arrested on July 3 at his residence by Deputy Dennis Allen and Sgt. Randy Dial and charged with first-degree fleeing or evading police in a motor vehicle, operating a motor vehicle on a suspended/revoked operator's license, operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol/drugs, and careless driving, court records state.

Dial said that Waddle was driving north on Wallace Wilkinson Boulevard when he crossed the centerline. When Dial attempted to stop Waddle, he refused to stop and began driving north in the southbound lane to his residence.

Allen stated that Waddle had a 5-gallon bucket in his vehicle containing Coleman fuel, lye, tubing, and ammonia nitrate.

After giving consent to search the residence, officers found six HCL generators and three, one-step labs were located and neutralized.

Also charged in the incident was 44-year-old Celesta Lee Waddle of the same address. She faces a charge of first offense manufacturing meth.
